

Jonas Siltamäki Håkansson

Software engineering consultant

I am an entrepreneurial self-employed software engineer with experience of multiple industries, from music and marketing to banking and finance. My interest in web development started as an 11-year old, when I created a website for a game I played. Since then I've obtained degrees in computer science and business administration, and have gained extensive knowledge working with software development and software architecture.

In addition to web development, finance and business are deep-rooted interests of mine. I consume a lot of information on macro economics, stocks and financial news, and I've enjoyed co-founding two startups. I also enjoy reading, running and cooking.
